An Opportunity.

There is an opportunity in many towns to grow peaches to supply the home trade that is now supplied from the city dealers or from large orchards at a distance. To make a success of this, high and well drained ground must be taken and the same grade of care given that our best large growers give. Then if the fruit is first class profitable prices will be received. It is surprising to find the number of baskets of peaches that can be sold right at home in some of the towns outside of the large peach districts, says a New England grower.

FOUGHT IT OVER AGAIN

Battle at Red Bank, N. J., Suitably Commemorated

MONUMENT FROM BARRE

Handsome Memorial Unveiled on Battlefield—Sham Fight to Represent Encounter of More Than a Century Ago.

Camden, N. J., June 22.—In the presence of the governors of three states, with their staffs and with the attendance of part of the North Atlantic squadron, under command of Admiral Craig, the new monument on the battlefield of Red Bank, N. J. about five miles south of here, was unveiled yesterday. The parade formed at Woodbury, and marched to the battlefield. It was a brilliant pageant headed by Regimental General O'Brien of New Jersey.

The formation was as follows:
A detachment of United States marines from the League Island navy yard, Admiral Craig and staff; Governor George H. Utter of Rhode Island, his staff and party. First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, Governor Samuel W. Pennypacker and staff, Second Troop Cavalry, New Jersey, Governor E. C.
Stokes of New Jersey and staff; Third Regiment, N. G. N. J., Battery Field Artillery, N. G. N. J., German Singing societies, and other organizations.

The arrival of the procession at the monument was heralded by a salute from the craters Dixie and Tacoma, which were anchored in the Delaware river off Red Bank.

Then came the most spectacular feature of the exercises the sham battle which was as near as possible to a reproduction of the original fight. Following a land concert a reception was tendered to Governors Stokes of New Jersey, Pennypacker of Pennsylvania and Utter of Rhode Island, the three states that were chiefly represented in the battle.

The programme for the unveiling included an address: "Rhode Island at Red Bank" by Governor Utter; an address, "Pennsylvania at Red Bank" by Governor Pennypacker; an address, "New Jersey in the Revolution" by Governor Stokes, and the presentation of the monument by Governor Stokes to the county of Gloucester.

RELICS IN CAVE.

Underground Passage Leads to Human Bones.

Woodstock, N. B., June 22.—The discovery of a cave containing human bones near the village of Johnville in Carleton county, by John E. and Charles E. Stewart is attracting hundreds of curious persons from Andover, Johnville and other villages.

The Stewarts while walking through a stretch of wild land on Sunday found a mound of earth at the base of a large tree, the roots of which had grown partially over it.

They procured a stick of dynamite and blew up the rock, uncovering a set of stone steps leading down to an underground passage seven feet in length and about two feet wide, opening into a cave 12 feet square. On a stone shelf in the cave about two feet from the bottom, they found a quantity of human bones. Near the bones was a gold ring, which, when polished, revealed the inscription "John Long. Dec. 4, 1792." A silver watch bearing the date of 1740 was also found, as were many bones.

FOREST SERVICE.

Planting on Rough Lands and Over Coal Deposits.

A variety of causes are awakening an interest in forest planting on lands owned primarily for some other purpose than the use of timber, but capable of yielding an added revenue from crops of trees. In Pennsylvania especially large forest plantations are actually under way. There are enormous areas in Pennsylvania from which the original timber has been cut and which are too rough for profitable farming.
In the coal regions much of the land overlying the coal is useless for farming at any time. Both these classes of land may be planted to trees with advantage and the timber used in the mines, the old fields on which farming has been attempted being particularly desirable for planting.

Water sheds owned to prevent further denudation and the contamination of streams and reservoirs rarely yield direct returns to water companies, but if properly planted their water conserving power would be increased, and at the same time future revenue would be in prospect.

The possibilities of forest planting have been realized by several large companies which have applied to the forest service for assistance.

Detailed information and application blanks for assistance of this kind can be secured by writing to the forester, United States department of agriculture, Washington.

Hanging a Hay Door.

There has been great trouble in finding a suitable method of hanging doors for unloading hay with fork or slings from the outside of the building. The HAY DOOR IN BARN.

method shown by my diagram will think the very best, says a Rural New Yorker correspondent.

Place your track on an incline with the roof and put on rollers on the doors at the same incline. They will open very easily and shut hard, but they can easily be managed from inside.

Crop Conditions.

The crop reporting board of the department of agriculture finds the area under winter wheat remaining in cultivation on May 1 to have been about 29,623,000 acres. This is 6 per cent, or about 1,718,000 acres, less than the area reported as sown last fall and 1 per cent, or about 214,000 acres, less than the area of winter wheat reported as harvested last year.

The average condition of the growing winter wheat crop on May 1 was 91 as compared with 92 on May 1, 1905, and 85, the mean of the May averages for the last ten years.

The average condition of winter crop on May 1 was 93 as compared with 94 on May 1, 1905, and 89, the mean of the May averages of the last ten years.

The average condition of meadow mowing lands on May 1 was 92 against 93 on May 1, 1905, and 90, the mean of the May averages of the last ten years.

The average condition of spring pastures on May 1 was 91 against 92 on May 1, 1905, and 89, the mean of the
May averages of the last ten years.

Slugs Without Sile.

A Minnesota farmer stacks his clover just as soon as it is cut. It makes no difference whether it is pleasant or rainy weather. He goes into the field, cuts his clover and stacks it on the land, making the stacks about 20 by 30 feet. In no case would he advocate a smaller stack. He claims that when he takes this clover from the stack in the winter it is in excellent green condition, all except a wall about sixteen inches thick around the outside, which becomes moldy because of its contact with the air. The weight of the clover rusts out the air and keeps the hay green and tender. This plan may be all right in a field, but it would be rather dangerous to stack hay near buildings. Instances have been known where spontaneous combustion has taken place in uncured hay.—Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

Sheep and Thistles.

In this age of experiment the reported performance of a Michigan farmer is worth trying. He was working his sheep in connection with an effort to kill Canada thistles. He put some salt as near the crown of each thistle as possible. In this way the sheep were induced to eat the thistles close to the ground. It is seldom necessary to deal with the case the second year.
